

Ella's Kitchen Named One of The Sunday Times' Best Companies To Work For

March 3, 2017

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., March 3, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Leading baby and toddler food company, Ella's Kitchen, has been named No. 22 in The Sunday Times' annual Best Companies To Work For in the small company category in the United Kingdom. The award recognizes the company's creative and innovative working style, inclusive work culture, environmental policies and wide-ranging staff facilities.

Ella's Kitchen was also gratified to be presented the Giving Something Back Award for excelling in giving back to society and the community. The company and brand received praise for its focus on sustainability through pioneering programmes such as Ella's Explorers, a program that enables school and nursery pupils to visit a market garden and working farm, which more than 5,000 children have attended since its inception in 2000.

Mark Cuddigan, Managing Director, Ella's Kitchen commented, "We're thrilled to have won this prestigious award and are delighted to have been recognized as a leading business when it comes to both giving back to the community and providing for our employees as we help improve children's lives through developing healthy relationships with food."

Irwin D. Simon, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Hain Celestial said, "We pride ourselves on being a business that leads from the front and consistently acts as a force for good, and both these awards reflect the work of the dedicated staff at Ella's Kitchen and their commitment to driving the brand's mission forward."
